It's true: the bloodthirsty Vampires of the South have always had a special appeal to the Gothic subculture. I think that's because they're the ultimate underdog—they're the ones who suffer unjustly, and the one who loses out. While every Dracula is a creation of the Victorian imagination, the love interest is often tragic, representing those who are wronged and becomes the object of the hero's obsession. This volume is a celebration of the diverse and appealing Vampire of the Southern Gothic tradition, exploring vampires as they've appeared in the works of Charles Brockden Brown, Robert Louis Stevenson, Bram Stoker, and others. There are some fun tidbits in here for any Brown's readers, including two stories by his contemporaries, James Fenimore Cooper and William Gilmore Simms. Within The Shadow Of Your Wing Originally posted June 22, 2014 This volume collects three mystery stories and one essay by Lyle Monroe—the best of his short fiction. After testing it for a week, I find that it may solve a majority of my playback problems. It has a useful batch mode option, and it can save really high-resolution content from streaming URLs. I use it mainly to save YouTube videos, and a few streaming websites like Spotify and Vimeo. It can solve my problem. I don't know whether it is true that the quality of the recordings is greatly improved compared to the streaming websites themselves. If that's true, that's a big help for us. If not, the program is still very useful. Now, some of the problems I encounter when I use ASFDump, and I don't have enough experience to make it work well. Some of them are: 1. Unsupported websites. ASFDump only supports the mms:// and protocols. Websites like BBC iPlayer and Amazon Instant Video can't be accessed by the software, and therefore, the recordings can't be saved. We have tried to work with developers, but no one has been able to fix it. 2. Incorrect encoding. There are some encoding errors (very few in the first week, but a few later) that are recorded by the ASFRecorder 1d6a3396d6

ASFRecorder is a utility for downloading streams from websites and for watching them. It's also a cross-platform utility, so you can use it in any operating system. ASFRecorder is basically the command line version of Winamp's "ASF Dump" plugin. The program acts like a reverse version of the browser plugin, taking the files it downloads and saving them on the disk. The program is totally automatic and can make a dump of any media website, as long as it is well-formed. The only thing you have to do is download the program and specify the URL of the stream you want to record. The program can download streams from any website which uses ASF or MMS streams (which are a set of header packets in the stream), but there's a huge number of them. It can also generate a dump of any stream into the "dump" folder (default location is D:\RECORDINGS). Once you've downloaded the files, they can be used as a common play source to both ASFRecorder and any other media player you might have on your system. ASFRecorder supports ASF (Advanced Stream Format), MPEG, MPEG-4, and MP3 files.
