According to an industry source on August 22, the “PSY Song” broke its own record for a Korean male singer, as “Gangnam Style” has not only topped the weekly and monthly chart counts for more than 160 days, but also managed to achieve first place on Billboard’s World Digital Song Chart for 203 days as of this week. The source also revealed that the “Gangnam Style” will be expected to set another new record, by topping the Billboard 200 chart in the United States. The source explained, “With the way the official chart is doing with the exception of K-pop, the music industry in Korea is going through some difficulties. The ‘Global K-pop Chart,’ which has been helping K-pop to achieve the best results in the world, will be closing soon. This is why we are so confident of the ‘PSY Song’ pushing the top spot on Billboard’s World Digital Song Chart.” The source added, “It’s hard to say when the record will be broken, but we are also sure that ‘Gangnam Style’ will achieve the top spot in the United States.” The “PSY Song” dropped to the sixth position last week after topping the chart for 161 consecutive weeks. The song has been continuously topping Billboard’s World Digital Song Chart since it was released in December 2012.
