The need to have sufficient parking spaces in urban areas has resulted in the development of private parking lots. The desire to reduce the use of public and private open spaces is another reason for the development of private parking lots, parking garages, and parking structures. For example, not only are parking garages expensive to construct and maintain, but they also require public and private space. To eliminate the need for using public and private open spaces for parking garages, parking structures were developed. Parking structures consist of covered parking garages which are expensive to construct and maintain and which also require e79caf774b
