I am confused with both of them, the context was that a static method can be accessed by static keyword alone, while a public method can be accessed by just the class name itself. Kindly help me understand the reason behind it, as I am new to java programming. A: public is an access modifier. It specifies the accessibility of the method/field. Classes that are not public cannot be instantiated. Classes that are not public cannot be extended by subclasses. Classes that are not public cannot have their fields/methods declared final. Classes that are not public cannot have their static methods invoked through the object references. Classes that are not public cannot have their static fields made final. A public class' fields/methods can be accessed from any other classes' methods/code. A public class's fields/methods can be accessed from any other classes' code. What's new:

ROUGH KUTS: Silent Night, Bloody Night is a 1994 American slasher comedy horror film, and the first installment of the Slasher Films of the 1980s trilogy to be released by Tristar Pictures. It was written by Curtis Bernhardt, directed by Mark L. Lester, and starred Michael Gross, Leslie Stefanson, Joe Pantoliano, David Dukes, and Geoffrey Boldrick. The film tells the tale of the entire 2004 school massacre which took place at the Dawson County Middle School in Payne, Georgia. However, instead of the normal attention given to the events as a case for the residents of the town of Payne, the official story from the beginning of the film is presented as a one man film from a disembodied head who recounts the events of the massacre, several years after the mass murder took place. Plot A police inspector, Jake Daniels (Michael Gross), begins working with Detective Rick Ford (Joe Pantoliano), a local, to find out what happened to a school girl named Julie Booker (Leslie Stefanson) in 2004. Although some of the students have died, Julie, who witnesses the killings, has escaped. It is revealed that Jake, who was dating Julie years ago, didn't believe in the supernatural but is now skeptical. Ford is skeptical because, as his partner explained, "The kid called. She said he saw a dark man, a glowing red eye, and a woman you couldn't kill. So he called the cops. We've never gotten the kid." Jake visits an ex-girlfriend named Jackie (Mark L. Lester) who is the only person known to have spoken to the boy, known as "Junior". Jackie knows about his past because he told her about the murders, although she insists that he could not have done it. She also mentions that he loved a girl named Julie who was killed ten years ago. Her brother Alex (David Dukes) who is an eccentric but considerate paranoid millionaire owner of the Dawson County Memorial Hospital, goes to Alex's home after Jake asks him to help contact and hopefully track down the boy. It is decided that the two detectives will ride the overnight train to Payne and call the Payne Medical Center. After Alex gives Jake a tour of the hospital, Alex takes a walk alone and he meets Amanda Ellis (Mercedes Ruehl), the female nurse. When they check into the hotel, Alex tries to talk to Amanda, but he is made

Last September the government introduced a raft of measures to tackle the family flight problem and impose a mandatory exit bond - a charge of €5 on each re-entry to the island. However, the Minister for Business, Enterprise and Innovation, Heather Humphreys, informed the Manx parliament yesterday that the ban on family reunions has now been introduced. It is understood the Government felt it was necessary as a "precautionary measure" due to the rise in "false or deceptive claims" being made to Revenue in connection with the Isle of Man Government's ban. The new mandatory bond would now be doubled to €10 - and could be taken against any family member of a tourist visiting for the first time, or even for a second visit. A decision on raising the bond will be taken next month, depending on the "availability of additional revenue". Ms Humphreys said: "We will be raising the bond for future visitors on an annual basis and keeping it high in order to dissuade people from entering the island on the basis of a false or deceptive claim being made to Revenue. "While entry to the island has been mandatory, the level of bond for family reunions would never be imposed as this would place an unnecessary burden on relatives of bona fide visitors."
