Evaluation of efficacy of standard-dose gemcitabine in patients with advanced non-small-cell lung cancer with a short peptidyl-prolyl cis-trans isomerase N (Pin1) polymorphism. A retrospective study was performed to explore the relationship between Pin1 (protein tyrosine phosphatase, interacting protein 1) polymorphism and its effect on overall survival of patients with advanced non-small-cell lung cancer (NSCLC) receiving standard-dose gemcitabine monotherapy. All patients were treated with a standard dose (1000 mg/m²) of gemcitabine in combination with cisplatin, at least 24 weeks and at most 30 weeks. The Pin1 genotype was determined by RFLP (restriction fragment length polymorphism) assay. To explore the relationship of Pin1 polymorphism and overall survival, the patients were divided into four groups: AA (n = 44), GA (n = 53), GG (n = 19) and AG (n = 65) according to the Pin1 genotype. In patients with AA and GA genotype, the median overall survival (mOS) was 9.2 and 12.6 months (p = 0.451), respectively. The mOS of the patients with GG genotype (14.2 months) was significantly shorter than that of those with AG genotype (20.3 months) (p = 0.019). Multivariate analysis identified the Pin1 genotype as an independent prognostic marker (p = 0.033). The Pin1 polymorphism could be used as a biomarker to predict survival of patients with advanced NSCLC treated with standard-dose gemcitabine monotherapy. #pragma once /* * Copyright (C) 2005-2013 Team XB c9d1549cdd

: Hangover or Getting in Top 7% As a rule of thumb of any business, it is generally accepted that there are two major problems regarding retention of employees: People quit and people leave. The latter problem is easier to resolve. In order to avoid this "problem", there are several measures for retaining customers. One of these is leading. People who receive something for nothing and those who behave without expecting anything are much more likely to return than people who expect something in return. As a result of the latter description, LEOs must act as role models and should always adopt the principle "this is your business, and ultimately, you will be successful or not, by winning over your clients". This is the basic understanding of the main idea of this article. It is meant to give you information regarding retention of LEOs. How to succeed in your career? What are the results that you can achieve? What measures should you use and which ones are the most effective? We will try to answer all your questions in this article. Important Facts about Retention 1. Prime customers are generally people who have tried a product, service and obtained some benefits, be them in monetary or in terms of quality. 2. Nearly 90% of people who liked a product will want to try it again. 3. Usually the longest period between two evaluations of a customer is between four and six months. 4. The majority of people don't like change. 5. Most customers get bored when they receive the same product, service, or provide nothing. 6. How effective is your communication channel? 7. People who know that they have the best products, people who are confused or not sure about what they need are much more prone to changing, and they can be lost almost immediately. 8. On average, the lifetime of a person who uses a product is about 4 months; that's how long it is before they will return it. 9. The most common evaluation is between 4 and 6 months; after that they start to lose interest and decide to either substitute by other products or switch to another company or service. 10. Customers will rather continue using your service if you give them some extras, that's why loyalty programs have such success. These are the basic facts of human behavior and all of them play an important role in the retention of your employees or any other type of client. They are the main reasons

Phoenix Point is a skirmish-based World War II tactical game set in the European theater. Based on the acclaimed turn-based strategy game from Eugen Systems, Phoenix Point puts the player in command of an independent military force in a fictitious alternate history 1940's Europe. Key Features: Interception - Take direct control of research aircraft to intercept enemies at will Operational Changes - A new combat mode offers a more dramatic and engaging experience! The Operational Changes System gives players the opportunity to make permanent adjustments to the game's rules and settings. These rules can be reevaluated at any time to adjust for real-world conditions and changing scenarios. Large War Table - Three-dimensional game board allows for six players in the offensive and defensive positions on the game table. Strategic decisions are made in real time on the war table during combat. Operational Changes system - give players the ability to make permanent adjustments to the game's rules and settings, and reevaluate them at any time. Humans are on the verge of extinction and the aliens are threatening to decimate the Earth. Fortunately, humanity has the Phoenix Project, a secret organization devoted to the development of a weapon known as the Behemoth. It's only a matter of time before the Pandoran ships reach Earth... Will you manage to stop them, or will you be destroyed first? Find out in this new downloadable content for Phoenix Point. Features: - New Tier 3 Research Aircraft - New Tier 4 Weapons - Additional Tier 1 Modules - New Tier 2 Equipment Summary Festering Skies is the fifth single-player expansion for Phoenix Point. It gives players the chance to fight off alien invasion and defend the planet Earth as the Phoenix Project. The expansion introduces the Interception Mode, which puts players in direct control of research aircraft and other state-of-the-art weapons. Moreover, there are more new units, weapons and missions, and the Behemoth, a newly introduced monster that is the expansion's main villain.

Flow cytometry based techniques in preimplantation genetic testing of human embryos: advances and future challenges. Preimplantation genetic testing of human embryos (PGT-HEE) allows the selection of embryos with genetic abnormalities before implantation and reduces the risk of transmitting such disorders to the offspring. The effectiveness of PGT-HEE, however, has been questioned because of its relatively low clinical efficacy in differentiating embryos with genetic aberrations from those with other chromosomal or
