Thu, 26 Feb 2013 10:38:31 Z 4: Champions of Tarnished-Liberty [PC][Mac] Authors: LightningNebula01 Date: 2011/3/17
Tarnished-Liberty is set in the City of Tarnished-Liberty, a protected city somewhere in Europe or Asia. According to information in the game, World War III ended when demons came from Hell, and armed with the help of modern technology, this demonic force waged a war over the terrestrial habitat. War was seen as a luxury, and people enjoyed this state of affairs. The use of power continued. The War of Hells continued, accelerated by eternal machines that grew more and more reliable, and reduced the number of humans. The dead began to multiply. Faced with the disappearance of mankind and the takeover of the country by demons, the head of the Government, Rask, determined to take advantage of the situation and strike at the War of Hells before the demons leveled all of the mighty, and for the first time the true existence of demons was revealed to the world. Now the government and demons combined have increased their popularity and authority, continuing their battle to reach absolute victory in the shortest time possible with the help of science and technology. What would become of mankind in such a hostile world? Demiurgos are special beings that came from the forehead that have been in Hell for 10 billion years. Demiurgos and demons had been to the eye of a stone, in a remote island of the ocean. The demonic head, called X-Raedo, will cause drastic changes in the lives of all of the people who live by the rules of the land of Tarnished-Liberty. Distant parts of the great island of Promil and other lands are connected to each other through strange creatures called Anthropgauts. Kept aloft with terrific power, an awesome crystal that was created as a weapon of war is piloted by the captain, Hyns, and the Time Gate? will connect the sky of Promil and other lands that is guarded by demon knights. The inhabitants of Promil and other people who live in the skies visit each other with their flying ships, defying laws of gravity

Paxillin defines a novel candidate protein-tyrosine kinase interactor that exhibits higher phosphorylation than protein-tyrosine kinase activity in human fetal blood vessels. We have cloned a novel candidate protein-tyrosine kinase (PTK) interactor from a human fetal brain cDNA library. The 1469-amino acid protein has a calculated molecular mass of 158 kDa and contains several consensus sequences for PTKs in the C-terminal region (YxxM) of the protein, while the catalytic domain is located in the N-terminal region. The expression of the cDNA corresponding to this novel PTK interactor in COS-7 cells results in increased kinase activity compared with endogenous PTKs, suggesting that this protein may have higher phosphorylation in fetal than in adult human blood vessels. In addition to its sequence homology with Src family PTKs, the interactor displays sequence homology with alpha-actinin in the arm-homology 2 domain. It also contains a SAM domain and a paxillin-binding motif, and the C-terminal region of the protein contains Src homology 2 and Src homology 3 domains. The interactor is likely to be localized in focal contacts and to be associated with the actin cytoskeleton. Furthermore, the interaction of the novel PTK interactor with focal adhesion kinase (FAK) was identified, and the binding affinity of the novel PTK interactor for FAK was shown to be of the same order as that of FAK for Src family PTKs. In addition, in vitro binding assays showed that the Src family PTKs also bound to the novel PTK interactor. These results support the hypothesis that the novel PTK interactor may be a candidate for the regulation of signaling transduction via integrins in the beta 3-integrin-mediated pathway.
