Install and Play Bookworm Adventures on Windows 10/8/8.1/7/XP/Vista.Q: import a class from the same jar in another module I have a selenium webdriver project, which contains 2 modules : -the main module -the test module The main project has different modules (seam, jee,...) and no Maven. When I compile it, I have this error : The type org.openqa.selenium.WebDriver cannot be resolved. It is indirectly referenced from required.class files I am using the weld-selenium 2.2.0 jar and the I did install some others jars in the properties folder of eclipse but in the test module, the import of Java API did not work and gave an error like this : Multiple annotations found at this line: - @OpenQA.Selenium.Support.UI.ExpectedConditions undeclared here - @XmlTransient undeclared here I have tried to use the weld-selenium from the repository of the project without success. Is it possible to generate a jar with another module (the test one) or import a class from another module? Thanks a lot. A: First of all you should check that your config is fine, that you don't have an error in the build process itself. You can use Maven console to check this. If it is fine, then you probably don't have the weld-* dependencies in your test project. I have this: compile: - if ["${project.groupId}" = "org.apache.maven.plugins"] and ["${project.artifactId}" = "maven-compiler-plugin"] and ["${project.version}"!= "3.3"] then mvn -n -f pom.xml clean mvn -n -f pom.xml compile else if ["${project
