Archive for the 'Tag Archives: conservative' tag The FCC's indecency policy has been in effect since the Nixon administration. During the pendency of the Supreme Court's deliberations on the FCC's "policy" Mark Levin has been campaigning for its abolition. The way the liberal media spins the "Overt" rule, the FCC's indecency policy is in effect to protect children. During the high-water mark of the Viacom/KROA spat, a "conservative" called the FCC "a bunch of children." Mark Levin: The FCC is such a bunch of babies. The FCC is going to outlive the dinosaurs in the 2040s. The FCC is such a bunch of children. The FCC thinks it's protecting children from watching the television networks. That's the rationale. If the FCC were protecting children from watching TV networks, their actions would be totally understandable. It's not a bunch of children that are running these Broadcasting Boards, giving free rein to America's TV networks. It's a bunch of children. So you're telling me that the FCC isn't protecting children from watching TV networks? It's not even protecting children from watching TV networks? That's the FCC's policy? And it's going to outlive the dinosaurs in the 2040s? How about that? Who do you think Mark Levin is? I'll tell you who he is. He's a conservative. He's a talk show host. He's a widely listened-to conservative talk show host. That's all he does. ... He's a conservative. That's all he does. And he's being portrayed by the liberal media as a raving lunatic. That's a very bad thing. You can't pretend like what he's saying doesn't represent a great many thoughtful conservatives. They should take some responsibility for what happens to this country. Mark Levin's – he's not a conservative, he's a talk show host – he's not a conservative. He's not broadcasting ideas to America's millions. He's a talk show host. Well

1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a hearing aid battery connector. More specifically, the present invention relates to a battery connector that is configured to prevent the connectors of the hearing aid battery from being disconnected. 2. The Prior Art Hearing aids are typically employed to aid persons having a hearing disability, for example, by delivering amplification to the person's ears. In the case of a hearing aid battery installed within the hearing aid, the battery is disconnected from its desired position within the hearing aid every time the hearing aid is operated. The hearing aid battery must be connected to the hearing aid during operation. Thus, in order to maintain the hearing aid battery within the hearing aid, often the battery holder is bent backwards. In this manner, when the hearing aid battery is disconnected from the hearing aid battery connector, the bent connector may be inserted back into the hearing aid battery holder, whereby a force of the insertion is transmitted to the hearing aid battery connector. Due to the foregoing, the hearing aid battery may become disconnected from the hearing aid battery connector, resulting in the necessity of re-connection of the hearing aid battery to the hearing aid battery connector, requiring user intervention. Accordingly, there is a need for a battery connector that will prevent the hearing aid battery from disconnecting from its desired position within the hearing aid, and which will not allow a user to insert the hearing aid battery connector back into the hearing aid battery holder after the battery has been disconnected from the battery connector. In addition, it is often useful to be able to change the battery without removing it from the hearing aid. Thus, there is a need for a battery connector that can be easily removed from the hearing aid.Q: "Aller" vs "en" without articles Which form is correct? Este medico es un asesor de médicos vs Este medico es un asesor de médicos The form used in 2nd sentence is correct, right? In 1st sentence, what is the difference between usage of "este" and "ese"? A: Este is the feminine form of el (un) having the definite article (es), so it is followed by es. Para ser más precisos: Quiero uno como asesor de médicos Para que yo pudiera elegir uno como
