Correlation of Tyrosine Kinase Mutations with Response to Imatinib in Gastrointestinal Stromal Tumors. Elevated KIT tyrosine kinase (TK) protein expression and tyrosine kinase activity are hallmark features of gastrointestinal stromal tumor (GIST) and are associated with patient response to imatinib. The role of KIT mutations is less well characterized. We analyzed KIT exon 9 and 11 mutations in a retrospective cohort of 100 patients with GIST treated with imatinib. Tumors were evaluated for KIT and PDGFRA protein expression and evaluated for response to imatinib. Exon 9 mutations were present in 27% of patients (27% overall and 39% of high risk patients). KIT exon 9 mutations were significantly associated with decreased likelihood of disease progression on imatinib therapy (P=0.011, hazard ratio 0.20, 95% CI 0.04 to 0.94) and with decreased incidence of disease progression (P=0.009, hazard ratio 0.09, 95% CI 0.02 to 0.56). No association was found between exon 11 mutations and response to imatinib. In a second cohort of patients, KIT mutations were evaluated for association with protein expression and TK activity. Correlation between KIT mutations and protein expression was not observed. However, tyrosine kinase activity was associated with KIT mutations, further supporting a role for KIT TK activity in tumor biology. The Primitive Baptist church serves as a case study on the struggle between the commonly held and historic views of man's creation and fall, and our globalist/empire-worshipping worldview.
