His home was destroyed in an Israeli attack in 1985. Khaled Shehadeh said he was "inside a house, not having breakfast, and opened the door and saw I could not get any water. So I went out."

"I couldn't go out and leave her alone, so I went in." He rushed inside, grabbed the metal pipe he had always kept in the house in case of emergencies, and smashed the woman's face, before running away. Shehadeh was arrested and accused of attacking someone in his neighbourhood in the village of Sa'ir. He was separated from his children, and taken into custody by soldiers. Shehadeh told the court he was conducting his morning prayers in his home when the neighbour knocked on the door.

"I opened the door, and saw I could not get any water, so I went out. I went outside, and she was lying on the ground, holding her face and telling me that my pipe had hit her. I saw she was bleeding. She was screaming 'khawassa (pig)!' Shehadeh then immediately told the neighbours that he had seen the woman being 6d1f23a050
